RE: Your request for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000

I write in response to your Freedom of Information Act 2000 (or 'FoIA 2000') request dated 29/10/2020 in which you requested:

'At the below, could you clarify "residential module"? Does it mean you will be staying in a residence (venue) during the module and will be away from outside distractions and save time and money on the daily commute, especially if the module you are taking lasts longer than a day?'

Decision

When a request for information is made under the FoIA 2000, a public authority has a general duty under section 1(1) of the Act to inform an applicant whether the requested information is held. There is then a general obligation to communicate that information to the applicant.

In line with section 1(1) of the FoIA 2000, we can confirm that the College holds some information within the scope of your request.

In regards to residential modules, HPDS officers attended residential modules predominantly at Warwick Business School.

The programme will consist of six three-day modules based either at Warwick or College of Policing sites:

- Leadership and Public Value
- Managing People and Change
- Operations and Performance Management
- Partnership working, Stakeholder Management and Community Engagement
- Project Management
- Managing and Using Resources

Your rights can be found at the bottom of this letter.

Yours sincerely,

Kate Kaufman | Legal Researcher
Information Management and Legal Team
